Verse 1:
Rebecca:
My whole life I've wanted to be bad. To be bad, to be bad, to be bad. But whenever I tried, the result was always sad. So sad, so pathetic, weak and sad. However now I know a

Rebecca:

Fosse Dancers:
That's Nathaniel:
Yeah, I got that.

Rebecca:

Nathaniel:

That's you. So how 'bout now you teach me how to be ruthless and cruel, yeah, I'm ready tonight! So strip away my conscience.

Peel away my values. Rip off my compassion with your teeth.

Pound away my morals. Spank off all my kindness. Expose the dormant bitch that lies beneath. You devil, lead me to the dark side like a lamb to the slaughter, then do me in a hot-tub filled with evil's stead of water. Let's make love not war all night and day. It's hot here in hell soo... strip it all a-

Rebecca: Stop hitting yourself!
Yeah, baby,

Bridge:
you're a soul-sucking corp'rate piece of trash!
Who only cares about sex, lies and cash! So tell me 'bout your sins and shock me with there lurid-ness.

Let me be your pupil; let me choke on your cock-sur-ed-ness.
In-nu-en-do!

Rebecca: But not on it, it's sensitive.
Fosse Dancers: Rebecca:
wrong.
Ba-by it's such fore-play when you slith-er like a mor-ay.  Eel. It's worth the dis-com-fort of my thong. You're like Pro-fes-sor Snape in his sad dun-geon with his po-tions 'cause some-how you don't have that suck y thing called e-mo-tions.
Fif-ty shades of mor-al-ly gray. And thong's so un-com-f’r-ble so...
Strip it all away.

Strip it all away!

Rebecca: That was just up my butt!
